THE WORKING MEN'S UNION.

The regular meeting was held on Thursday evening, when two new members were elected.

The Executive Committee reported that all the German women had returned to Kauai; that they expected on the following day to have a definite arrangement with the German Committee about the payment of the bills.

The Relief Committee tendered their thanks to all who had enabled them to assist the German women; they were satisfied that there was no wrong in what they had done, as others had followed their example.

One woman had called to thank them for the devotion and sympathy they had shown, and had expressed her thanks to Miss Breese and the Ladies' Committee.

The Employment Committee said that business was dull, but they had found work for three men.

The Treasurer's Report showed liabilities of about $110, and it was agreed to hold his balance sheet open till next meeting, to enable him to collect all outstanding accounts.

Mr. E. ff. Ward hoped that the Report of the German Relief Fund would be presented at the same time. He thought that the German residents would recoup them the expenses they had incurred, and their offers should be received with thanks.

The Secretary's half yearly report was received. This document referred to the foundation of the organization, the election of officers, the cause of the German laborers, the displeasure of the press that they had incurred and its "change of front," the ventilation of abuses in the labor contract system, the "ably prepared address" of Mr. Z. Y. Squires, the case of the boiler-makers, the resignation of Mr. Danielewicz, the proposal to establish classes for instruction, and a ball to be held on New Year's eve. The society started with 20 members and now numbers 54.

Mr. Kohm reported that the rent of the house occupied by the German women was due.

Mr. Crowley understood that it had been paid, and volunteered to pay it, but thought they should first see the German Committee.

The election of officers was postponed till Thursday, to take precedence of all other business, and the members to be well notified; the report of the treasurer also to be completed and submitted.

Mr. Kohm said that some members had been elected who never paid their dues; he advocated an alteration in the system of election of members, as he knew of two men anxious to join, and their reasons for doing so, that some of them would like to vote against.

Mr. May wanted a ballot box and moved this the question of voting be discussed at the next business meeting.

Mr. Ward gave notice that he would move, at the next business meeting, that an alteration be made in the by-laws whereby the meetings should be held once a month, unless specially called by the officers.

Mr. Marchand drew attention to the ball to be held on Monday evening, in aid of the Union. He hoped that all would help as they were behind in their funds.

Mr. Cavenagh said that the tickets would be $1, to admit a gentleman and ladies, and that refreshments would be supplied at cost, the profits to belong to the Union, which, in this case, would be the profit-monger.

Mr. Crowley then read a paragraph from the Gazette, which he characterized as a "rather mixed paragraph." He then read a reply to it, which will probably appear in the next issue of the Gazette. He said the Y. M. C. A. was doing a grand work here, which, in other places, was undertaken by mechanics' institutes. To give instruction was not the work for which a Y. M. C. A. was founded, but here it followed the example of a mechanics' institute. The Gazette had preached the doctrine of $8 a month, and find yourself, for laborers.

Mr. Cavenagh corrected the last sentence of Mr. Crowley's, thought no sneer was intended in the paragraph referred to, and that they should not take it to heart.

Mr. Crowley said the Gazette was the organ of the P. L. and S. Co. which wanted labor at half the price it paid at present.

Mr. Godfrey, reporter of the Gazette, said that Mr. Crowley had misconstrued the intention of the paragraph, and had forgotten to mention the word "good" at the end of it. It was intended to assist them by showing that they were entering upon a better and more useful field. He believed that the remarks were not in sympathy with the sentiment of the meeting, but were personal on the part of Mr. Crowley.

Mr. Cavenagh thought that Mr. Godfrey's explanation showed there was no venom intended.

Mr. Marchand thought these quarrels were detrimental to their interests; he must admit that a kick from the press was a great help to them, and he saw nothing in the paragraph to cavil about.

Mr. Crowley considered he was at liberty to reply, if he, or a society he was connected with, were attacked.

Mr. E. ff. Ward said that he would say a good word for John in Mr. Squires' discussion, on "how to get rid of the Chinese," to be held on Thursday.

It was suggested that Mr. Cruzan be asked to take part in the debate. The meeting adjourned till Thursday next.

THAT MAGIC LANTERN.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Allow me to state that I am the proprietor and operator of the Advertising Magic Lantern, now in operation on Fort St. opposite the Reading Room. I have personally visited all the merchants doing business in that locality, and (with but a single objection) find them all willing for me to continue exhibiting; the majority of them advertise with the above named light. As I will show but two more nights this evening and on Monday evening, I would respectfully invite the public to inspect the same, and draw their own conclusions whether it is a nuisance or not, as has been stated by some very dear friend of mine. I would request the public to leave a passage way on the side walk. GEO. C. STRATEMEYER.
